As a partner of the European CeQuint project, Hcéres will be participating in the “Assessing the Quality of Internationalisation” conference on 26 and 27 February 2015.

Hcéres is a partner in the European CeQuint project , which is organising the Assessing the Quality of Internationalisation conference in Paris, on 26 and 27 February 2015. The conference aims to answer the most pertinent questions from a quality assurance perspective:

- What is considered quality in the internationalisation of an institution or training programme?
- How can a programme or institution self-assess its internationalisation?
- Which evidence can institutions and programmes provide to demonstrate quality in internationalisation?
- What good practices can be shared?

The CeQuint project, which is coming to its end, has developed and tested a methodology to:

- (self)assess the quality of internationalisation of higher education institutions and programmes;
- help enhance the quality of internationalisation;
- reward the quality of internationalisation of institutions and programmes by issuing a European certificate.

The first certificates will be awarded to “pilot” programmes and institutions during the conference.
